

LT. NORTHCUTT REFUSES STORY OF ESCAPADES

Mystery Of Disappearance From Norfolk Unexplained

Bremerton, Wash., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Rear Admiral H. J. Ziegemeier, Commandant of the Puget Sound Navy Yard, today awaited an explanation from Lieut. Harold W. Northcutt that would clear up the mystery of his disappearance from Norfolk, Va., two weeks ago.

A request for the explanation was made yesterday by Rear Admiral Ziegemeier at the instance of the Navy Department, after Lieut. Northcutt had been detained for several hours at the Navy Yard without volunteering any explanation of his disappearance from Norfolk and his reappearance Sunday in Vancouver, B. C.

Northcutt came voluntarily to Bremerton from Vancouver and has been detained at the Navy Yard here on orders from Washington. So far as is known no formal charges have been filed against him.

"I have asked Lieutenant Northcutt to make an explanation to the Navy Department," Rear Admiral Ziegemeier said. "So far, however, I have not received any statement from him."

Refuses Interviews
Northcutt flatly refused to see any one yesterday and his guards reported that he spent most of his time playing solitaire in his quarters in the Marine barracks.

The lieutenant steadfastly refused to accept counsel from fellow naval officers who offered their assistance. He would not discuss his case with them.

Dispatches from Vancouver quoted Mrs. Sarah Gibson, apartment house proprietor, as having advised authorities that Northcutt came to her place a week ago with a young woman and rented an apartment. Two cards, bearing the name of Miss Laura Clements and showing that she was a nurse in good standing at the University of New York, were found among personal effects in the apartment, occupied by Northcutt there.

Under Observation
Mrs. Gibson said two nurse's uniforms were in Northcutt's rooms. A note on a small piece of paper also was found by Mrs. Gibson which read, "married in Seattle Monday, address H. W. Northcutt, letter follows."

When confronted with questions concerning the reports from Vancouver, Northcutt would make no reply and refused to discuss Miss Clements with any one.

Reports from naval officers at Norfolk yesterday indicated that a medical examining board would be appointed to observe Lieutenant Northcutt's action and make recommendations to the Navy Department.

Dementtown Barber Alleged Bootlegger

Ralph Rupert was the first of the number of alleged boot-leggers taken in Friday afternoon's surprise raids conducted by Sheriff Ward Miller's forces, to enter a plea of guilty. Rupert was the first to face Judge Leech in the County Court yesterday afternoon for the arraignment of bond and the setting of the cases for trial. Instead, he signified a desire to plead guilty to the information charging possession and sale of intoxicating liquor. Judge Leech imposed a 60-day jail sentence and a fine of $250 and the costs.

John Nagle who conducts a barber shop on Depot avenue, was another to be taken by surprise as the recent liquor mop-up. Nagle was arrested on a state warrant yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Fred Richardson and taken to the court house where a charge of possessing and selling intoxicating liquor was preferred. In default of bail in the sum of $2,000, he was taken to the county jail. Nagle and Jim Lee appeared in court today and furnished bonds. All those appearing yesterday afternoon furnished bond in the sum of $2,000.

Efforts To Scare Family Succeeded

A report stating that a young man armed an axe, whose mind had become affected and who had not only threatened to take his own life but to kill members of his family, took deputies from the sheriff's office to a home west of the city limits last night in response to a hurry call. The officers spent some time in searching for the young man and neighbors left their homes in fear of a possible attack from a wildly insane young man. Unsuccessful in locating the man, the deputies returned to the sheriff's office.

Shortly after their return, another call was received and this time it was reported that the greatly feared young man had taken up his headquarters in the home of a neighbor which had been left in darkness without being locked when the first alarm was given. Deputy Fred Richardson went alone to the home and brought the youth from his hiding place and conducted an investigation. It developed that the young man had lost his temper during an argument at the home and was trying to frighten his family, which he had did with great success.

Sparks of State News From Special Wires to Telegraph

Centralia, Ill. (UP)—The automobile probably will never do away with the "old hitching rack" in Centralia.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

East St. Louis, Ill. (AP)—Cleo Wilson of Mount Vernon, Ill., was sentenced today to serve two years in the national reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, and fined $500, for violating the Dyer Act. Wilson stole an automobile in Mount Vernon and drove it to Cleveland, Ohio, where he was arrested.

ORDER IS EXTENDED

East St. Louis, Ill. (UP)—The temporary restraining order, prohibiting the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club from operating its dog racing plant in Cahokia, Ill., has been extended 10 days by Federal Judge Fred L. Wham.

FUGITIVE WAS SHOT

Bellevue, Ill. (UP)—Leaping a wall, Oscar Caldwell, 24, Negro, escaped from the county jail here, only to be shot and taken to a hospital after leading prison authorities in a spectacular chase.

His condition was regarded as critical at the hospital today.

SLAYER SEEKS FREEDOM

Granite City, Ill. (UP)—Efforts to release Carl Florita, former member of the notorious "Cuckoo" gang, from prison where he is serving a sentence for murder, will be started soon, according to his attorneys.

Florita was sentenced to serve 50 years in the Chester prison for the murder of Elmer Bliz, who was killed during a $23,000 robbery at Madison.

H. J. Bandy, Granite City attorney, said he is preparing to file an appeal with the Illinois State Supreme Court and that it would contain attacks on evidence offered at the trial.

Henry Etzel, who also was convicted of the slaying, has not indicated whether he would appeal.

Fear Detroit Man Met With Accident

Detroit, Nov. 5.—(UP)—William J. Scripps, 24 son of W. E. Scripps, publisher of the Detroit News, was kidnapped or met with a serious accident when he disappeared from his hotel in Windsor, Ont., almost two weeks ago, Detroit and Canadian police declared today in instituting a search for the missing man.

Scripps went to Windsor to interview Oskar Kuhn, a member of the motorless airplane firm of Gliders, Inc., of which Scripps is president. He left his hotel room at 8 A. M. after writing a note for Kuhn saying he would return soon. He has not been seen since.

The absence of Scripps from his office caused no alarm for a few days. Yesterday his father requested that a search be made, because the youth took no money when he disappeared.

The kidnapping theory was partially discounted due to the fact that relatives have received no ransom demands. During his absence however, no unidentified persons have been victims of accidents in Windsor or vicinity.

STOCK EXCHANGE ON SHORT HOURS BALANCE OF WEEK

Curtailed Sessions Are To Be Held On Next Three Days

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The stock market was closed today because of the election after an isolated session in which prices showed a net decline of two to 17 points on a turnover of 6,202,930 shares.

The rally which was expected when the market opened yesterday failed to develop and in its place appeared selling pressure which was the dominant note throughout an orderly session.

The volume of trade and range of prices was regarded by operators as normal contrasted with behavior of the market last week, when after a wild selling stampede on Tuesday in which 16,140,030 shares were dumped, the market came back sharply in a three-hour session Thursday with gains up to 36 points and a total of 1,149,390 shares.

For the first day since October 24, the beginning of the big slump, the ticker was able to keep close to the market. It closed 30 minutes after the last sale.

Curtailed Sessions
Curtailed sessions from 10 A. M. to 1 P. M. tomorrow, Thursday and Friday with complete suspension of business Saturday has been ordered by the Board of Governors of the Stock Exchange in a further effort to permit brokerage houses to catch up with the bookkeeping entailed by the tremendous volume of trade last week. It was found that the two-day holiday over the week end had not afforded sufficient time for overworked staffs to complete their tasks.

The collapse of security prices last week was the reason given in a petition for a receivership filed in Federal Court yesterday against the Bankers' Capital Corporation, a Wall Street investment trust company.

Two brokerage houses were suspended by the Curb Exchange last week for failure to meet their obligations as a result of the decline in security prices.

Reason for Sag
Various reasons were ascribed to the sag in prices which contradicted forecasts of an advancing market. Predicted largely on statements that a large volume of buying orders had accumulated over the week end, and on favorable financial news.

The sale of stock bought for supporting purposes during the decline; profit taking by traders who bought for a turn when prices were falling; and selling by shorts who expected the closing out of weak margin accounts were some of the factors mentioned to explain the downward trend.

With Mrs. Dawes, the Ambassador is to be a White House guest for the next three days, and before his departure on Thursday night it is confidently expected that he and Mr. Hoover will go thoroughly into all phases of the naval conference to be held at London in January, at which Dawes will be one of the American delegates.

There will be conferences, too, with Secretary Stimson, who will lead the American delegation, and possibly with Senators Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, and Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, who will hold places on the American Tariff Commission.

In the light of the naval limitation situation, considerable interest is being manifested in the address which the President will deliver on Armistice Day at a gathering sponsored by the American Legion. It is expected that the speech will deal largely with foreign affairs, with particular attention to naval armaments. It will embrace a delineation of what has been done in the recent negotiations.

Poland and Finland Restoring Navies

Cherbourg, France, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Poland's re-born navy has been increased by one destroyer, the Wicher, which was launched here yesterday. It will be followed by a destroyer of similar design, the Burza. Two Polish submarines of 1,250 tons each also are under construction in France.

Copenhagen, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Finland was understood today to have started creation of her first navy. Two cruisers of 4,000 tons each and four submarines and four torpedo boats are under construction. Two of the torpedo boats are being built in England.

State May Erect New Cell Houses

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 5.—(UP)—Erection of a new $250,000 cell house at Pontiac state reformatory by the state with convict labor and convict-made material was under consideration by Rodney Brandon, director of the State Department of Public Welfare here today.

Brandon yesterday rejected bids for the construction of the cell house on the ground that the bidding contractors wanted too long a time to finish the work.

Their bids specified it would take ten and twelve months to complete the work.

"We want the new cell house sooner than that," Brandon said. "We want to have it ready within six months. If the contractors can't do this then perhaps the state can."

Brandon has asked the state architectural department to figure on the job and they will let him know tomorrow whether it will be feasible for the state to undertake the task.

Capt. Brandon pointed out, already are making stone blocks which could be used in the erection of the building and they could supply the unskilled labor necessary.

Should State Architect Hammond decide to assume the task of building the new cell house it is likely that the same procedure would be followed in the erection of new cell houses at Chester and Joliet state prisons.

Crime Specialist For Every School

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 5.—(UP)—A crime specialist for every school was urged as a means to keep the American youth in the straight and narrow path by Dr. Guy Morse Bingham, sociologist, here today.

A criminologist, according to Dr. Morse, who is here to address a series of father and son dinners this week, would help young people to stand on their own feet and he could study them, psychologically, and put them in a position to make good instead of growing worse as they grew older.

Out of 163,859 prisoners in the United States in 1922, 9814 were women.

LOCAL REPORT.

For the 24 hours ending at 7 A. M. today:
Maximum temperature, 46; minimum, 33. Part cloudy. Precipitation, trace.

POSSES SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF MISSOURI FOLK

Neighbor Alleged To Have Killed Man And His Wife

Independence, Mo., Nov. 5.—(UP)—Acting on the clew given by bloodhounds following a trail from the scene of a double killing, a posse of Deputy Sheriffs and farmers continued today their search for George Hostetter, 41, missing since Albert Weddle and his wife were found shot to death in their home Sunday.

Miss Opal Weddle, 18, returned from church and found her father dead on the floor of their sitting room, shot through the head. Nearby lay her mother, unconscious from gunshot wounds. She died Monday.

Bloodhounds first led the posse to the home of Maude and Mary Hunter, cousins of Mrs. Weddle. A family feud, officers learned, had existed since Weddle accused the sisters in a division of their land.

From the Hunter farm house the dogs nosed along to the home of Hostetter, reported to be the fiancé of Mary Hunter. He was last seen on the day of the murder, carrying a shot gun.

Hostetter was arrested 14 months ago for a murder committed in Elko County, Nev., in 1920, but was freed. He was said to have blamed Weddle for his arrest.

MUCH INTEREST IN PRESIDENT'S SPEECH MONDAY

Armistice Day Speech Will Follow Talk With Dawes

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Visiting Washington for the first time since he assumed his duties as Ambassador to Great Britain, Charles G. Dawes brought to President Hoover today an intimate account of the recent naval arms limitation negotiations with the London government.

With Mrs. Dawes, the Ambassador is to be a White House guest for the next three days, and before his departure on Thursday night it is confidently expected that he and Mr. Hoover will go thoroughly into all phases of the naval conference to be held at London in January, at which Dawes will be one of the American delegates.

Daughters Accuse Mother In Court

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 5.—The almost unparalleled situation of three grown daughters charging their mother with misconduct was offered in testimony in the divorce hearing of Alice E. Murphy, 45, against Henry P. Murphy, before Judge T. Sterling Pomeroy in the Kewanee City Court.

Mrs. Murphy brought the suit charging her husband with extreme and repeated cruelty.

Murphy countered with a cross-bill, accusing his wife of having an ungovernable temper and attempting to strike him with domestic utensils. He also charged that when he attempted to call at the residence of Mack Fell, his wife's employer, when his son was ill, Fell chased him away with a club. The defendant claimed that the divorce bill was part of his wife's scheme to marry Mack Fell, he further charged that on Dec. 15 and 29, 1925, Mrs. Murphy was guilty of misconduct with Fell.

Testifying for the defendant were Mrs. Roy Burnett, Miss Anna Murphy and Mrs. Alice Bonis, daughters, who supported their father's charges despite a severe cross-examination by Judge Pomeroy. The court sought to determine the motive of the animosity of the daughters against the mother.

WIERD TALE OF ROBBERY TOLD BY EX-CONVICT

Kankakee Officers Investigate Story Told By Man

Kankakee, Ill., Nov. 5.—(UP)—A weird story about a bank or railroad holdup and the hiding of $100,000 worth of loot was investigated by police here today.

The story, authorities said, is sponsored by Lawrence Brannigan, held on a charge of violating a parole.

Brannigan, it was said, related portions of the story but refused to reveal the hiding place and the victims of the holdup until assured he would be freed of the charge of being a parole violator. He declared that the holdup occurred near Connerville, Ind., several years ago.

Detectives of the Illinois Bankers' Association and United States Postal Inspectors who quizzed the man are skeptical of his story. He said he obtained his information from a fellow convict at Joliet.

Brannigan, according to the police, was paroled after serving three years of a ten year sentence for armed robbery at Peoria.

He was arrested here recently in connection with a murder but convinced authorities that he had been kidnapped and held captive in a roadhouse near East St. Louis on the night of the slaying.

While under arrest, it was discovered he was on probation from Joliet and was wanted there for alleged failure to abide by terms of the parole.

Robert G. Lowry, 40, traffic superintendent of the airline, the Corporacion Aeronautica de Transportes, formerly of Fort Worth, Texas.

The four men left Valbuena aerodrome, Mexico City, in a single motor cabin ship at 6:30 A. M. Yesterday, apparently crashing a half hour or so later at Pena Del Monte ranch, near Villa Carbon, in the mountainous country on the rim of the Valley of Mexico.

The plane was destroyed. Position of the bodies indicated all had died instantly. Cause of the crash was undetermined but airways officials said exceptionally bad flying weather prevailed, with heavy fog and believed possibly the craft lost its way in the mist.

Two Injured Sunday in Onwensia Fox Hunt

Chicago, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Col. Noble Brandon Judah, former Ambassador to Cuba, and Mrs. Frederick McLaughlin, the former Irene Castle, were injured Sunday riding to hounds in the Onwensia fox hunt, it became known today.

Mrs. McLaughlin suffered a broken rib. Her hunter tripped, fell and rolled over her twice. The accident to Col. Judah occurred shortly afterward. His horse stumbled and threw him violently, and he was found unconscious on the ground. He will be confined to a hospital for several days, although the injuries were said to be not serious.

Both Mrs. McLaughlin and Col. Judah had severe falls before Mrs. McLaughlin was dangerously hurt in 1926 when thrown by her hunter. Col. Judah's collar bone was broken a year ago during the Onwensia hunting season. The former Ambassador has a stable of famous racers and jumpers.

PROSPECTORS IN 55-DAY TREK TO REACH OUTPOST

Safe Arrival Of Canadian Party Ends Thrilling Hunt

Montreal, Que., Nov. 5.—(UP)—Col. C. D. H. McAlpine and his seven partners on an aerial prospecting trip in the Arctic were forced to make their way on foot for 55 days through frozen wastes to the Hudson Bay post on Cambridge Bay, according to a special dispatch to the Montreal Gazette today.

Safe arrival of the party was reported in a wireless message from the post yesterday. McAlpine and the seven other fliers had been missing eight weeks. Four planes were sent out to search for them, making their base 60 miles from Bathurst Inlet.

A problem now facing government officials is how to notify the searchers that the lost prospectors are safe. If this can be done, the planes will be sent to Cambridge Bay to bring the men back to civilization. If not, then McAlpine and his companions will remain guests of the Hudson Bay Company for months to come.

Planes Unharmed.
The two planes of the exploring party did not crash, but were forced down on the rugged Arctic coast by a lack of fuel and a blinding north-west gale which hurried them off their course as they attempted to push their way from Chesterfield Inlet to Bathurst Inlet, about 1,300 miles north of Winnipeg.

Official weather reports received from observers at lonely posts throughout the region gave a vivid picture of conditions the fliers faced. A great gale sprang up the day McAlpine's planes took the air. It lasted for three days sweeping the entire northwest region with violence. Snow flurries added to the difficulties. The fliers lost their bearings; they could make no progress against the storm; their gas ran low; they had to land.

The expedition was equipped with maps, kindling wood, four rifles and fishing tackle, according to A. M. Narraway, Assistant Director of the Canadian Topographical Survey, who directed the search parties.

How many miles the thwarted prospectors trekked it is impossible to say until further word is received from them. It is likely however, that they covered 200 miles in their 55 day struggle toward the Hudson Bay post.

After pulling their machines up on the rocky Arctic shore they headed along the coast with three Eskimo hunters to Kent peninsula and then across Dease Strait.

They could not travel on a direct route, Narraway said, but would have to deviate to hunt caribou and Arctic hares and to fish through the ice. At night they were probably comfortable in their sleeping bags.

The veterans of the Arctic considered it fortunate they encountered Eskimos to guide them to safety for compasses are useless so close to the magnetic pole.

BROOKHART DRY SPEECH BRINGS SENATE'S SMILES

Don't you feel contaminated? You have had Kuhn, Loeb & Company on one side and J. P. Morgan & Company on the other.

"I said I believe I was inoculated."

Called a "Polecat"

The Brookhart read a letter he received today from "Roger W. Minton, Quincy Hotel, Boston, Mass., suggesting that he, Brookhart, was qualifying as a "charter member of the polecat club" by telling on his host.

Brookhart said "no one can tell me what is my duty."

"That's what's the trouble in this country. It's these secret societies of high society who connive to violate the law."

"This is nothing new. I had the same experience when I was a prosecuting attorney in Iowa."

"I want to say to members of the United States Senate, get out of these booze parties. You don't need hip flasks as members."

There was a silence as Brookhart sat down and then Moses in the chair stated the pending tariff question.

At the outset Brookhart read a newspaper editorial stating that everyone knew Congressmen drank before a grand jury here tomorrow and answer questions as to liquor parties in Washington because he did not think a U. S. Senator ought to claim exemption.

"I congratulate President Hoover on his personal stand. His example has had a good effect among big people who today after the big people."

He urged that the three reporters for the Washington Times who have been imprisoned for contempt of court in declining to reveal the source of their information in connection with a recent liquor expose, follow his example and go before the grand jury here.

Brookhart said he had traveled to northern New York state line from the Thousand Islands to Vermont last summer and had failed to find a single prohibition agent there.

Attacked Mellon.

"There was one striking example of the situation at Touissant Twombly's place; his house and a shed lie across the border and he is able to slip cars loaded with liquor across the line at any time the customs officers leave the place 10 minutes."

"Three men placed on that line will stop the traffic at Touissant Twombly's."

"Who is to blame?"

"I'll tell you. I am not after the little fellows. The man who is to blame is Mr. Andrew W. Mellon."

Brookhart replied, "We offered him $500,000 to enforce prohibition at the last session of Congress and he turned it down. He didn't want it. I want to call the attention of the President to the fact that he was responsible over Mr. Mellon. It is up to him to remove Mr. Mellon and get a Smedley Butler or someone else like that who means business."

splendor along the Nile and the other of society and fashion in a modern American city—ended shortly after midnight today when Chicago completed the dedication of its $20,000,000 opera house.

The death refrain of Aida and Radames in their living tomb on the stage and the bawling of taxi men along the portico outside the skyscraper "opera home" marked the completion of a social and cultural triumph that is certain to go down in Chicago's history as one of its greatest.

So enthusiastic were the 3,600 music lovers and representatives of the city's old guard society over the opening of the new building and the artistic performance of Rosa Raisa, Charles Marshall and their supporting cast that the dedication ceremony was continued for more than an hour after the time scheduled for the final curtain.

Although the critics said that the artists missed not a note in Verdi's masterpiece, there were attractions at this opening more fascinating than music.

Display of Finery

Leaders of fashion from the Gold Coast put on such a display of finery as to dim the radiance of the Princess Amersil herself. The thirty six boxes ranging across the back of the auditorium were aglow with the warm luxuries of brocade and velvet, diamonds and gold. Even the main floor and a few rows of the first balcony reflected the care with which Chicago had prepared for the great event. Outside the building amid the booming of flashlights countless thousands massed under the block-long colonade to watch celebrities in ermine and sable step from their limousines.

During the intermissions the eagerness with which everyone present sought to see what everyone else was wearing congested the pink carpeted grand foyer below and the mezzanine floor above. In that glittering assemblage was the answer to whether women will return to long skirts. They will—and with a vengeance. Some of these at the opera wore skirts with trains four feet long. All of them dragged for at least a few inches behind the heels.

Samuel Insull, multi-millionaire of public utilities, turned out to be the financial prima donna of the evening because of his success in bringing grand opera in Chicago into such a rich setting. By the end of the third act of Aida the fashionable audience had become so informal in its enthusiasm that shouts of "Mr. Insull!" "Mr. Insull!" rose from the orchestra seats and mingled with the applause for Rosa Raisa, who at that time, was taking her third curtain call and receiving three baskets of flowers.

The boom for Insull died temporarily then as the amber lights above the pink velvet seats of the auditorium dimmed for the last act, Howard Preston, a tenor of the Civic Opera, faced down the center aisle shouting again for Insull. The cry was caught up all over the house. Three times the lights dimmed and came on again when the audience shouted and clapped. Finally an usher played the beam of a flashlight over the golden crescent of boxes and brought it to rest upon the chair reserved for the utilities magnate. The chair was empty. In his hour of triumph the President of the Opera had gone home.

FROM BROOKLYN HEIGHTS

If you would seek for beauty stand with me
On a secluded terrace that I know
And gaze on steel Alps rising from a sea
That clasps a river in its arms below.
Marvel as mist unfolds them in a blur
Of hyacinthine blue; or see the sun
Turn every summit to a scimitar
Of yellow flame against a sky gold-spun.

Watch those gray crags emerging in the dawn—
Looming ghost-like above a drowsy bay;
Mark them at noon—clear cut—their outlines drawn
With giant strokes on the bright glare of day.
And then behold them in that twilight hour,
When suddenly ten thousand wind-drops flower!

Girl Scout Convention Opens at New Orleans Wednesday

New Orleans, La., Nov. 5.—(UP)—The fifteenth annual Girl Scout convention will open here tomorrow prepared to discuss the initiation of a development program planned for the next five years. It estimates in advance the cost over this period of time and is so designed as to recognize the problems that increasingly confront the philanthropic supporters of such organizations as the Girl Scouts.

The beneficiary of this movement is not simply the girl herself but also her family and her community for the organization tries to employ her leisure as to supplement the work of the home, church and school.

Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady of New York, chairman of the board of directors, will explain in detail to the New Orleans Convention just what the development program means. From the point of view of the girl scouts or their leaders it means no more than an expansion of present activities. There are now 200,000 members, and it is hoped by the end of the five years, to have half a million. The greatest need of the organization is leaders, without whom it cannot expand, and particular attention will be paid under the new program to their training.

Among the Speakers

The convention will open with an address by Mrs. William H. Hoffman of New York, president of the Girl Scouts, who will be followed by Dame Katherine Furse, director of the World Bureau of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides, who has come from England to take part in the activities. Among prominent women scheduled to speak during the week on various aspects of Girl Scout work in the United States are Mrs. F. Louis Slade, of New York whose subject will be "Fellow Citizens;" Mrs. Irene Farnham Conrad executive secretary of the Central Council of Social Agencies of New Orleans, who will discuss community chests and their value in co-operative financing of community organizations; Mrs. Ida S. Harrington of Providence, R. I., executive director of the American Homemakers, Inc., who will speak on "Our Commonwealth;" Mrs. Frederick H. Brooks who will speak on "The Community Chest in Washington, D. C., and the Value of the Community Chest in Girl Scout Financing."

Tomorrow afternoon the New Orleans Girl Scouts will entertain the delegates at a tea.

The closing event of the week will be a banquet on Friday evening in the Venetian Room of the Roosevelt Hotel. The opening speech will be by Mayor Arthur J. O'Keefe, who will be followed by Nicholas Bauer superintendent of education; Alfred Danziger, president, association of commerce; Miss Dorothy Dix and Miss Perrine Dixon.

sent him, and a letter of thanks was also read from the Hine's Hospital for silk and rags sent.

Mrs. John Strub then thanked the order for greetings sent her at the state convention where she was honored by being voted State President. An invitation to the dedication services for the Horace Ott tablet on the morning of Armistice Day at Haymarket Square, was read and accepted. A delegate to the state convention.

Mrs. Lucy Eastman then gave her report, telling of the trip to Ottawa in the rain. The state president, Mrs. Carlson, had rooms at the Hotel Ottawa, where the state board meeting was held Tuesday evening with one on Wednesday morning at 9:30 at the Elks club rooms. The president, Mrs. Carlson, called the meeting to order and America was sung, the American Creed was repeated and the Flag Salute was given. Mayor Hilton welcomed the War Mothers to the city. Ottawa's first state vice president of the War Mothers responded to the Mayor. Greetings were then given by an American Legion veteran to the Mothers, telling how much the Mothers are doing for the veterans of the World War. Greetings were also extended from the Relief Corps, from the Spanish War Veterans and from the Daughters of Union Veterans.

The Daughters of Union Veterans served the lunch which was enjoyed by all, and the American Legion Auxiliary entertained the Mothers on Wednesday evening.

Much business was taken care of and all reports showed the chapters doing splendidly. The banquet was held at the M. E. church. Following the banquet the Chamber of Commerce furnished cars and escorted the Mothers over the city.

Mothers from the state received greetings from the Dixon G. A. R. in form of a telegram. Mrs. John Strub was elected state president. The local chapter will hold their rummage sale and bazaar, Nov. 8 and 9 at the Dixon Implement Co's rooms on First street. Bed spread will be given away, Nov. 15, at G. A. R. hall. The meeting closed in form with singing, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Ethel Leginski and Famous Orchestra Here Sunday, Nov. 17

The Boston Women's Symphony Orchestra, with the famous Ethel Leginski conducting, will appear in the first concert of the season, under the auspices of the Dixon Civic Music Association on the afternoon of Sunday Nov. 17, the concert to start at 1:15 o'clock. Reservations for the fifty women will be made at local hotels, soon.

Leginski is not only a national figure, but international. A few of her press notices state:

Dayton, Ohio, Journal:
"Her piano work is like rippling magic. Empty to say that she is possessed of great technical ability; it is to say that her phrasing is perfection. Hers is the gift of genius that follows no rule and has no law. A flaming spirit here, and how she interpreted the brilliant measures of Liszt."

Berlin
(Conducting the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra)

"Leginska proved her ability to conduct. She led with skill and assurance and the orchestra followed with interest. She makes use of the possibilities of the most modern orchestral effects with great deftness."
Boerse nCourier—Nov. 19, 1924.
"Leginska dominated the orchestra"

THE charm of Colonial days is found in Pewter. Long before silver-plate made its appearance, Early America was producing pewter mugs and tankards which today enthrall the collector. . . . This background has created a widespread interest in pewter. Present day pieces have not tarnishing quality and rich luster. They do not blacken or discolor. . . . Consider the beautiful Colonial lines of this pair of pewter candlesticks. A happy gift selection, is it not?

Gloria Swanson Is Again in Old Seat in Childhood School

Chicago, Nov. 5.—(UP)—A little girl again as 30 years faded before a tide of memories, Gloria Swanson went back to her seat in the second grade at the Hawthorne school today and made 100 in reading, spelling and penmanship.

Teacher, Miss Bertha L. Wernecke, just as kindly as when she taught Gloria her A B C's but with gray hair and spectacles now, sat at her desk on the rostrum to make things just as they were when Gloria was in the "second reader."

After the movie star, who now is the wife of the Marquis Henri de la Falaise de le Coudray of Deauville and Paris and has a little boy and girl about the age she was 30 years ago, has gone to the blackboard and spelled the words correctly and added her sums, she sat down at her old desk.

She shared it with the happiest girl in all Chicago, Eleanor Westergren, 7. Shyly the little girl confided a dream:

"When I grow up I want to be a movie actress and Countess with lots of clothes and go everywhere and—"
"No, child, now is the happiest time in your life," said Miss Swanson.

The Countess was crying softly a few minutes later when she accepted a bouquet from her little friend.

"Please, Miss Gloria, these are for you," said Eleanor, as she proffered two wilted carnations tied together with string.

The ring ceremony was solemnized. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Tampico to make their home and receive the congratulations of their friends.

Yarde-Sibley Wedding Saturday

On Saturday afternoon at the parsonage to the Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. A. T. Stephenson, officiated at the wedding of Thomas V. Yarde and Miss Elsie M. Sibley, both of Tampico. The couple was unattended.

THE RESTLESS AMERICAN.

If you were asked to pick one word that would characterize modern Americans, what word would you pick?

J. D. Mooney, president of the General Motors Export Co., says that the first thing he notices when he returns to this country from abroad "is the restlessness that I see about me." And perhaps that one word—"restlessness"—is about as apt a word as you could choose.

At the close of the Revolution, the American colonists, with restless haste, began to swarm over the back country behind the Alleghenies. They roamed deep into the forests, founded new cities, dug canals, sent steamers and barges up and down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and in a generation had hewed out a new empire.

They had not finished before the Louisiana purchase abruptly extended their horizon a couple of thousand miles farther west. Again the restless urge seized them and they were off. The great plains were settled and cleared of savage enemies. A war was fought with Mexico, and the great empire of California and the southwest passed into American hands.

When the expansion of territory ceased, the restless ones found new outlets for their energies in industrial expansion. All over the land mills began to shoot their black smoke toward the sky. New railroads were built, new mines were dug, new industries founded; there was no leisure, no time for resting and taking stock, no time for developing the arts. Always there were more jobs to be done, and always the restless American threw himself into them with enthusiasm.

Today we have no more virgin territory to settle. Our industries are pretty well stabilized. Yet the old restlessness exists, and it is still finding outlets. American are looking abroad; the energies that formerly went into expansion at home are now building up an industrial and financial empire that is embracing the whole earth.

America today has nearly $15,000,000,000 invested abroad. Young men, in ever-increasing numbers, are being sent far afield to look after these investments—to Europe, to South America, to the islands of the far east. In their wake go the salesmen and following them go steamers bearing American goods. The restlessness that developed a continent is now extending its influence over every land.

Restlessness; yes, it's a pretty good word for us. Most of the time we don't know exactly where we are going, or why; yet we keep eternally at it, driven by the urge that has been bred in us. And, without quite realizing it, we are changing the civilization of the world.

INVESTIGATING "CHARITY."

The American Bankers' Association keeps hammering away at the cry: "Before you invest, investigate"; and it is doing all of us a service thereby.

The latest easy-money racket it has uncovered is the "charity raffle." It has discovered that millions of dollars go to line the pockets of promoters of these affairs. The promoters contract with some charitable institution to raise money by raffling off an automobile or some other valuable article; they sell the tickets to a public that thinks it is contributing to worthy cause; but the charitable organization usually collects only about 26 cents on every dollar taken in, the remainder going to the promoters.

"Whether you give for charity or make an investment, it will pay you to get the facts," remarks an official of the Bankers' Association.

A 2100-MILE MEMORIAL.

Sam Hill, president of the Pacific Highway Association, wants to lay out a memorial garden 2100 miles long, fringing the entire length of the Pacific Highway from the Mexican border to the Canadian line.

It is his plan to have space in this tremendous garden for memorials of all kinds—to states, individuals, causes and ideals. Up and down the west coast road, trees and flowers would grow as perpetual, ever-green monuments.

This is a new idea, and a good one. Why not expand it to other highways as well? Trees and flowers certainly would look better than the present system of gaudy billboards that line most of our main trunk.

The Wall Street crash may have been a healthy enough reaction, at least insofar as it gave the Democrats a great big laugh.

When some of the congressmen go back home to mend their fences they are going to discover they have been given the gate.

The Rockefeller Foundation has given Yale $500,000 to study apes. Probably a great deal of subsidizing will be revealed.

THE TINYMILES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY JOSEPH

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tines still kept out of sight. They felt that they would be all right if Mister Farmer went away and lugged his barn along. There wasn't any sense, they thought, of walking out and being caught. The farmer still looked rather mad and they would get in wrong. And so they watched him for a while and then they saw him broadly smile. The barn was on his wagon and he seemed all set to leave. The Tines heard him yell "Giddeup!" and give his horses quite a slap. Then Scouty said, "He's going to leave us now, I do believe."

And sure enough, he drove away. The whole bunch could have yelled hurrah, but they were wise and kept real still till he was out of sight. Then Clowny jumped up in the air and shouted, "Wheel! What do we care if old man farmer's good and mad. We're safe and sound all right."

"Gee, we got out of that right slick. I hope he gets back home real quick, and gets his barn set up all right. Then he will feel real fine. We might have helped him with his task but I was kind of scared to ask him if he'd like assistance. He might spank us. Not for mine!"

The bunch then started on their way and Scouty said, "Come, we can play along the wondrous highway till we reach some place that's new. There's no use staying here, I guess. There's nothing doing. I confess that I would like to find some place where there is heaps to do."

All of a sudden Coppy cried, "Be quiet, boys, and quickly hide. Jump right behind a tree and then, for goodness sakes, don't peep. Look there and see what I have found. A man is sprawled out on the ground."

The Tines looked and saw the man and he was sound asleep. (The Tines peek into a dinner bucket in the next story.) (Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.)

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

GUNPOWDER PLOT FAILS

The Gunpowder Plot, a project for destroying the kings, lords and commons at the opening of Parliament in London, failed on Nov. 5, 1605. Disappointed and angered by the persecution of Catholics by King James I, a few of the Catholics banded together to overthrow the government and establish one of their own.

The originator of the plot was Robert Catesby, but it was a soldier of fortune, Guy Fawkes, who was selected to set fire to a hoghead and 36 barrels of gunpowder which had been placed in a cellar under the House of Lords.

Members of Parliament learned of the plot and Fawkes was arrested on the morning of Nov. 5, a little after midnight, as he came from the cellar dressed for traveling.

Examined under torture, Fawkes confessed his own guilt and revealed the names of his associates. Nearly all of them were killed on being arrested or died with Fawkes on the scaffold.

Far from remedying the oppression of Roman Catholics, the plotters greatly increased their miseries.

What about carbon that mechanics can't reach?

Considerable carbon forms on the underside of piston heads. Not even the most conscientious removal job can reach this carbon.

When it is hard and flinty, this carbon chips off in gritty particles which drop into the crankcase. Mixing with the lubricating oil, they become a menace to expensive engine parts.

Shell Motor Oil avoids this danger. It forms a surprisingly small amount of carbon. And what little is deposited in a Shell-lubricated engine is soft, fluffy and soot-like . . . the kind which actually blows away with the exhaust gases.

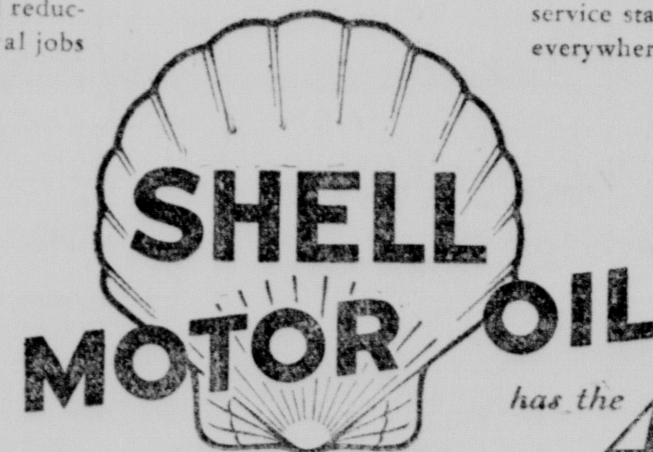

Regular users of Shell Motor Oil are protected from the danger of abrasive carbon particles in the crankcase oil. They report a marked reduction in carbon removal jobs and a new freedom from "frozen" piston rings and pitted valves.

Only Nature's richest lubricating crude forms the base of Shell. Refined by the new Shell-developed, low-temperature process . . . never scorched or weakened. And tested 259 times before it reaches you.

That is why the rich, unvarying quality of Shell Motor Oil provides the four essentials of correct lubrication: Low Carbon Content, Non-Fouling Carbon, Ideal Body at All Operating Temperatures, and Low Pour Point.

STOP AT THE SIGN OF THE SHELL—And let the Shell Lubrication Chart be your guide. Courteous salesmen await you at the familiar yellow and red service stations. Convenient everywhere.

To the man who keeps a car five years—we say: "Try Shell for 30 days"

Assure yourself of the mileage you know is in your car by providing proper and safe engine lubrication. A month's trial will show you improved performance, greater power and increased operating efficiency.

ORDER OF NUNS AT SCHOOL AID AIRWAY PILOTS

Sisters Give Exact Weather Reports Four Times Daily

Peekskill, N. Y. —(UP)—Standing on a bluff commanding the Hudson river here is St. Mary's school for girls. Life moves tranquilly; the Sisters and their pupils go about their daily tasks freed from the hustle and bustle of ordinary life. St. Mary's is designed in medieval gothic style and it has a medieval gothic air.

Yet the school has one very compelling contact with the outside world. Twice a day the Canadian Colonial mail plane wings its way overhead and the pilot dips and waves his hand. For just before either Newark or Albany he has received weather reports from the Sisters of the school. Four times a day they describe weather conditions to the United States Weather Bureau.

To the outsider there is something anomalous about weather reports coming from such a sequestered unworldly spot. A school of this type should hardly be expected to be co-operating with such a modern phase of life as aviation. Yet the Sisters themselves see nothing paradoxical about it.

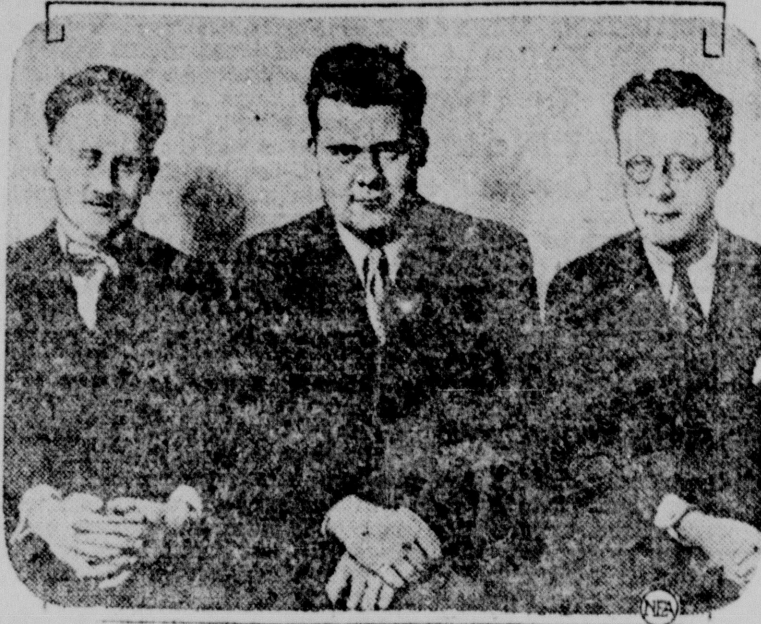

"The purpose of our order," said one of the nuns, "is service to others. The sending of daily reports rendering a service to the pilots and their passengers is a real responsibility; we are aware that upon our reports depends the safety of others. Consequently we endeavor to make our reports as accurate as possible."

New Instruments Ordered
"Washington is sending us a complete set of instruments so that in the future we will be able to report even more accurately than at present. A tower will be erected on the bluff in front of the school, with the instruments so arranged that we can read them from inside the buildings."

The first report filed by the Sisters is phoned to Newark at 6:25 in the morning. The three other reports are telegraphed to Albany at 7:50, 11:50 and 1:20. Frequently requests for supplementary reports are received especially when local conditions at Newark and Albany are bad. Five Sisters including the Sister Superior take part in the work and at least two are always on duty to answer the special requests. With the exception of barometric readings the reports are complete—including ceiling, visibility, type of clouds, velocity of the

JAILED FOR THEIR SILENCE

But Reporters Can Go Free If They Name Washington Bootleggers

These three newspaper men on the staff of a Washington daily, may not get out of jail until they tell a District of Columbia grand jury where and from whom they bought liquor in the capital. Left to right are Gorman M. Hendricks, Jack E. Nevins, Jr., and Linton Burkett, who were given 45-day sentences for contempt of court, and sent to the same jail where Harry F. Sinclair is serving time for a similar offense. The three men refused to divulge bootleggers' names and addresses after they had conducted a personal survey of Washington speak-easies. At the end of their present term they are liable to be re-sentenced if they continue to withhold this information.

and a note on general conditions.

The Sisters determine the ceiling by Dunderberg, a 1200-foot elevation across the river. Visibility is checked by looking up and down the river, the Sisters knowing the distances to various points. The Weather Bureau officials have given the Sisters instructions on gauging wind velocity and types of clouds.

St. Mary's became a weather station as the result of a tour of exploration made by Capt. Hale Francisco, division superintendent of the airways, over a year ago. As he flew down the river he spotted the building standing on the top of Mount Gabriel. He immediately informed G. S. Lindgren, U. S. Weather Bureau observer at Albany that he had found an ideal spot for an intermediate station between Newark and Albany. Lindgren investigated, found it was a school and asked the Sisters if they would serve the cause of aviation.

To Instruct Pupils
To his delight they accepted immediately and the work began. Lindgren has lectured at the school since his first visit with the result that the keenest interest in aviation and weather observation has developed among the pupils. The Sisters plan, as soon as their instruments arrive, to instruct the girls taking science courses in weather lore. Pilots flying the route state emphatically that the Sisters' reports are exceptionally dependable. They err only on the side of safety.

"If the Sisters tell us that there's a 1500 foot ceiling," said Ralph Dodson, chief pilot, "we know it's more likely to be 1750. And if their wire says five miles visibility we feel pretty certain that it's unlimited."

WATCH YOUR RESERVE
By GILBERT FITZ-PATRICK,
M. D.
Chicago, Illinois

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

Health is the most important thing in the world because the health of the people of a nation is that nation's greatest resource. This is plain from the fact that wealth is an accumulation of physical effort, a product of labor—labor is work—and sick people cannot work.

Requiring or maintaining health is the Biggest of Big Business in the United States, because more than $3,000,000,000 is annually paid by the people of the United States for professional service rendered by physicians, dentists, nurses, druggists, hospitals, sanitariums, and to manufacturers, for the necessary supplies and equipment.

More than 3,000,000 people in the United States at this minute are idle through sickness, the great majority suffering from preventable disease—the kind we acquire through carelessness or ignorance.

Many people today look upon sickness as a disgrace, something to be ashamed of, because if the sickness be a preventable one, the fact of being sick is gross evidence of ignorance. It stamps the individual as careless, one not to be trusted, because if he is lax about the most important thing in the world will he not be careless about less important affairs?

The best way to maintain good health is to have periodic health examinations by your family physician and dentist; check your disease liabilities against your health assets. —Just as is done by all good business men the character and amount of health commodity you have to draw upon in the ware house of your vitality; and do not overdraw.

No one need be uninformed or misinformed as to health and disease. And that makes your cause, Mr. Mrs. and Miss Reader, very simple. Find out your health resources. Keep the reserve level high. Do not take for granted that you are any exception to the normal rules. Remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure just as truly today as the day it was first put into words.

Farmers From Down State Talk Turkey

Urbana, Ill. —(AP)—Farmers down in Richland county are "talking turkey", H. H. Alp poultry extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, reports.

As part of a revival of turkey raising in that part of the state they are getting together once a week for ten weeks to discuss profitable methods of producing the famed holiday birds. Up-to-date sanitary methods being adopted by the farmers are expected to lead to increased turkey raising in that section, Alp said.

Eight of the 50 people who turned out for the most recent of the meetings in the series of ten reports that they already are raising turkeys. The meeting was arranged by Farm Adviser C. D. Beatty and the vocational agriculture teacher in co-operation with the agriculture college. Recommended methods of incubation and brooding were discussed by Alp.

A flock of 147 young turkeys has been raised this year on the farm where the meeting was held and at 10:30 o'clock at night near the close of the session, all those attending went out to the barnyard to inspect the birds. Headlights on the automobiles of visitors furnished the illumination. The meeting was featured by the playing of "Turkey in the Straw" by an old-time fiddler and the wearing of turkey badges by all those attending.

BIG TEN REVIEW
By WILLIAM MEEKS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Nov. 5—(AP)—Minnesota and Purdue, racing step and step toward Western Conference football honors, both are haunted by the same spectre—Iowa.

The Iowa menace is Minnesota's concern this week for they will meet at Iowa City Saturday. With Northwestern and Indiana out of the way Coach Spears started yesterday to elaborate on his offense, in preparation for the game that may make or break the Gopher season.

The situation caused by the schedule may work to the advantage of Purdue, which will meet Iowa after Minnesota takes its crack at Burt Ingerson's team. The contest is almost certain to be a test of physical endurance, and the Hawkeyes may be softened up for Purdue by their experience with Minnesota.

Ohio State prospects of a victory over Northwestern Saturday were jolted yesterday when Coach Sam Willaman of the Buckeyes suspended Charlie Coffey, one of his star backfields, for the remainder of the season for infractions of training rules while the team was in Pittsburgh last week-end. Coffey was the most consistent ground gainer for Ohio State in the Pittsburgh game and Willaman had expected to start him against the Wildcats.

Illinois started drilling for its inter-sectional clash with Army Saturday. Coach Zuppke finished telling the varsity how bad it looked against Northwestern last Saturday. "Frosty" Peters was in uniform yesterday, but will not know if he will be able to play against the Cadets until he is given an X-ray examination Wednesday.

Although battered in its defeat by Purdue, Wisconsin received no rest yesterday. Coach Thistlethwaite immediately went back to work to try to develop an offense which will function enough at least to score on Chicago Saturday. The Badgers have yet to score a point in conference competition. The Maroons got off easy, following their triumphant return from Princeton, but were to begin vigorous preparation today for the Badgers.

Michigan is working busily to prepare a surprise for Harvard which will make its first midwestern appearance Saturday at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines are in good shape and Kipke hopes to unearth the missing scoring punch. Indiana has an open date this week and faces little work.

ON EASTERN FRONTS
By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 5—(AP)—Ten inter-sectional games mark the east's football card on Saturday but only four of them can be classed as of an importance in other than the combatants.

The two most important contests will be played in the middle west where Army tangles with Illinois and Harvard plays Michigan. In the west West Virginia takes on Detroit and New York University attempts to check Georgia's Bulldogs, conquerors of Yale in an early season game.

All these battles should be close Army, despite its tie with Harvard and its defeat by Yale, will be primed for the Illinois, whose hopes of a third Big Ten title went a-glimmering last week against Northwestern Michigan, in the midst of a bad season may find Harvard too tough but Harvard will know it has been in a fight.

The other inter-sectional games will find Maryland facing Yale; Western Reserve playing Cornell; Ithaca and Ohio battling Buffalo; Manhattan traveling south to meet Oglethorpe; Thiel of Pennsylvania tackling Ashland of Ohio; and Salem of West Virginia confronting Muskingum of Ohio.

Sharing the spotlight with the major inter-sectional contests will be such purely domestic meetings as Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson; Colgate and Columbia; Dartmouth and Brown; Navy and Georgetown; and Lafayette and Rutgers. Pittsburgh, one of the most powerful teams in the country will be stacking up against a formidable defense aggregation in W. & J. The Presidents, tied twice but unbeaten, have permitted only six points to be scored against them. Colgate defeated only by Wisconsin looks too rugged for Columbia and Lafayette will be favored over Rutgers.

Princeton, with only one victory to show for its season, will be expected to add another at Lehigh's expense.

SPORT SLANTS

The early season suggestion to keep an eye on Josh Cody's Clemson Tigers in the Southern Conference race still holds good. The South Carolina aggregation, with John Justus leading the attack, swept through its October slate without being checked. It draws three tough games in succession with Kentucky, V. M. I. and Florida to be met in the drive down the November stretch but no one can convince a Tiger partisan that any of these foes can halt the big rush.

Clemson is especially anxious to lift Florida's scalp in return for the trimming administered by the Gators last year. To be better prepared for the visit to warmer climate Cody has had a special uniform made for the Florida game, consisting of a pair of rayon pants that "weigh nothing at all" and a cotton shirt. Lighter equipment and more and better reserves will give Clemson the edge Cody believes.

It may be worth noting, if comparison of scores means anything, that the Clemson Tigers walloped Davidson by a margin of 18 points whereas West Point beat the same aggregation by only 16 points.

"ALBIE" BOOTH

Though he looks much like the ordinary college youngster, there's something extraordinary about the football playing of "Albie" Booth. Yale's dynamic little giant. He's the spark plug of the Old Eli team, a listless, heavy machine when Booth is out of the game, but a ruthless, powerful steam-roller when Booth's fire touches off the works. Almost single handed the Yale midget snatched a 13 to 0 margin from the Army eleven to give the Bulldogs a 21 to 13 victory. Booth scored the 21 points on three touchdowns and three points by dropkicks. The pictures above show him in football regalia, in his study room and on the campus between classes.

services of Herr Max Schmeling, a lively battle between North and South may develop in the quest for the winter's heavyweight title. Madison Square Garden already has laid extensive plans to repeat its Miami Melody but just at present the "subsidizing and recruiting" efforts of Big Carey's millionaires have not succeeded in getting Herr Max into the big line-up. In fact Herr Max seems lined up somewhat definitely with the Atlantic City enterprise.

The big problem, for either Atlantic City or Miami, is to get the match that will draw the most gate receipts. Jack Sharkey is at the command of the Garden group. He is also the leader of the heavyweight pack, as a result of his knocking out of Tommy Loughran. Phil Scott, the shuffling Briton, might be called in to battle Sharkey but the fact remains that a Sharkey-Schmeling match is the logical affair, if some definite conclusion is desired in selecting a successor to Gene Tunney.

"Who were the best ends in the past five years of college football?" Oosterbaan of Michigan and Hanson of Syracuse, without much argument. Both were marvels on either defense or offense, powerful and rangy. Their superlative skill at the passing game, as receivers, reflected their remarkable ability as basketball players, where they were just as much all-American as they were on the gridiron.

MANDELL BEATEN BY McLARNIN IN CHICAGO BATTLE

Advantages Of Weight And Reach Decided Their Contest

By BERT DEMBY
United Press Staff Correspondent

Chicago, Nov. 5—(UP)—Irish Jimmy McLarnin, who throws hard punches and is willing to take what the other fellow has in exchange, believed today that he was ready for a welterweight match with Jackie Mandell, the present 147 pound title holder.

Jimmy believes that he got over the toughest obstacle in his path to the welterweight throne when he whipped Sammy Mandell, the lightweight champion, last night.

Mandell, despite his weight of only 138 pounds, was looked upon as the foremost contender for Fields' title until he lost to McLarnin. He did not lose decisively, but he lost nevertheless and for the first time in his life he found an opponent who could get by his left jab and consistently land hard punches.

Weight Deciding Factor
Perhaps the weight had something to do with it—Sammy weighed only 137½ while McLarnin scaled 143½. This extra weight of McLarnin's obviously was the deciding factor in the fight.

Never before had Mandell met an opponent who could rush through his left jab, but McLarnin went through it and landed hard lefts and rights. Maybe the reach had something to do with that (McLarnin had approximately three inches advantage) but at any rate Jimmy got through enough to punish the lightweight champion. In previous fights Mandell's left has been good enough to hold off all opponents, but McLarnin took and disregarded it.

Sammy looked like the champion in the first round and he won by dancing and jabbing. McLarnin got an even break in the second when he rocked Mandell with two lefts and a right cross to the head as the round closed. Mandell jabbed and danced to win the third and fourth round, but lost the fifth when McLarnin rocked him three times with right crosses to the head.

Body Blows Hurt
Jimmy began punishing Sammy's body in the fifth round and he continued that style to win the sixth and seventh. The body punishment obviously hurt Mandell. Mandell danced, boxed and jabbed his way around the ring to win the next round and the crowd which filled the Chicago Stadium thought he was going on to a victory, but he was too tired to show flashily in the tenth.

When the two fighters came out in the last round, there were shouts of: "Whoever wins this round, wins the fight."

Mandell started to jab and box, but McLarnin began to slug. He belted Sammy's body and he smacked his opponents' jaw until there was no doubt who had won the round.

Punches Illegal
Harder punches gave McLarnin the fight. Once or twice he resorted to rabbit punching and it was only fair to say that these illegal punches hurt Mandell so badly that he was slowed up.

In the semi-windup Otto Von Porat, of Norway, contender for the heavyweight title, belted over another opponent who obviously had no chance with him. The opponent was Charley Smith of England, who started like a whirlwind and cut Von Porat's eye in the first minute of the fighting. But Otto nonchalantly sent over a left hook to the jaw, which put Smith out in the first round. It

But One Surprise In New York Bouts

New York, Nov. 5—(AP)—The elimination tournament by which the management of Madison Square Garden hopes to produce a generally recognized holder of the vacant flyweight title has passed its first round with only one surprise. Last night's set of four ten round battles between leading 112-pounders served principally to entrench Eugene Huat, champion of Belgium, more firmly in the favorite's position.

Huat, conqueror of Spider Pladner and Frenchy Belanger, made his New York debut in the principal bout of the night by administering a solid beating to Izzy Schwartz. New York's entry came just after Willie Davies of Cherleroi, Pa., who had been picked as the other probable finalist, had succumbed to the punches of his old rival, Black Bill of Cuba.

The night's two other victors were Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia and Ruby Bradley, Holyoke, Mass. Negro Wolgast eliminated Johnny McCoy of Buffalo, N. Y., from further competition while Bradley defeated Ernie Peters of Chicago. In both bouts the decision was unpopular with the fans. The four winners will be matched later in a pair of semi-final bouts and the survivors of these clashes are to meet in a 15-round final. The New York State Athletic Commission has promised the ultimate victory recognized as flyweight champion.

YES OF NATION CENTERED ON VA. ELECTION TODAY

Will Decide Whether State Returns To
"Solid South"

By the Associated Press
While election contests drew the eyes of a dozen states to the polls today, the eyes of the nation were fixed primarily upon the gubernatorial election in Virginia, watchful for any indication of what might be expected of the Old Dominion in future national campaigns.

Mayoralty elections in New York, Boston and other cities attracted attention, but today's balloting in Virginia was considered a crucial test for the Democratic organization here, and the efforts of the Republican party to solidify its gains of last year's presidential election under the leadership of Herbert Hoover.

With a coalition candidate, William Joseley Brown, sponsored by the Republicans and those elements of the Democratic party which supported President Hoover, opposing the candidate of the regular Democratic machine, John Garland Pollard, it was inevitable that the results of the balloting should be compared with the Hoover majority of 25,000, and interpreted as indicating that Virginia had definitely joined the column of doubtful "states or had returned to the "solid" Democratic south.

Each Claims Victory
Both candidates made election-eve speeches. Brown addressing an audience in the mountain section of the state and Pollard in the tide-water section. Each faction claimed a victory, estimating its majorities at from 10,000 to 20,000.

In New York City, Mayor James J. Walker's candidacy for re-election on the Democratic ticket, was opposed by Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican; Norman Thomas, Socialist, and Richard E. Enright, former Police Commissioner, running under the sponsorship of the Square Deal Party.

In addition to this and the Boston contest there were mayoralty elections in cities of Michigan, Indiana, Kansas and Ohio.

In Kentucky the Republican party sought to gain control of the last arm of the state government held by the Democrats, the Legislature.

State-wide elections also were on in Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania, having to do with a tax limitation amendment in the Buckeye state and with the election of state judges in the two others.

In addition to the gubernatorial election, the Virginia voters were called upon to select a Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, and the entire membership of the House of Delegates.

ELECTION SUMMARY

The places and subjects of today's elections are as follows:

Virginia—Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, full membership of the House of Delegates and Municipal and County offices.

Kentucky—One hundred members (full membership) of the House and twenty members of the State Senate, two constitutional amendments and offices in most counties.

New York—Mayors in New York and numerous other cities, several constitutional amendments, and selection of a successor to the late Representative Roy H. Weller of the Twenty-first Congressional district. Michigan—Municipal contests in Detroit and other cities.

Indiana—Mayor and other officers in most cities.

Illinois—Judges of state Superior Courts and officers in sixteen counties.

Pennsylvania—Two state judges and municipal contests in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and most other cities.

Massachusetts—Mayors of Boston and other cities.

Ohio—Mayors of most cities and tax classification amendment to the state constitution.

California—Municipal in San Francisco, Sacramento and some other cities.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

AT BIBLE CONFERENCE

"What Think Ye of the Christ?" will be the subject of the Bible exposition to be given tonight by Dr. Lee Wilfred Ames at the Bethel Church Bible Conference. The service begins promptly at 7:30.

At last night's service Mr. Ames delivered a forceful message on, "How to Succeed in the Christian Life." He presented seven principles. "The first principle," he said, "is to reckon the definite and eternal changes that have taken place in the life of the Christian. One of these is justification. Justification means to be delivered from the penalty of sin and to be a partaker of the righteousness of Christ. A Christian is also a 'born one.' He has been regenerated; the new birth has taken place in his life and he is a member of the family of God. The natural man is at enmity with God, but is reconciled to God when he accepts Christ. This first principle is the foundation of a successful Christian Life.

"The worthwhile things need to be cultivated in the individual life and in the church as well as on the farm. Christians need to reckon on the fact that they need to be changed continually. We need to be saved from sin today and as long as we live. There is need that God's people engage in a ministry of admonition."

After showing that God's estimate of our environment is that it is evil and a Christian cannot draw inspiration from it, Mr. Ames made a strong appeal to his hearers to be separated from it. He further stated, "Separation is the only place of success."

The provisions for a successful Christian life are Bible study, prayer, testimony, and fellowship with God's people. Believers were urged to give themselves wholly to these things.

"Beware of pitfalls," said the speaker in closing, "and when you do fall quickly recover yourself. The child when it falls does not wait to be picked up, but immediately gets up. When you fall down get up. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

The Wednesday afternoon cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Barkley, 317 W. Morgan St.

Will Take Explorers Month To Get Back

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 5.—(UP)—Col. C. D. H. McAlpine and his party of seven aerial explorers, have been rescued from northern Canada's barren lands, but it will take them almost a month to reach civilization, according to estimates made today by officials of Dominion explorers. The Hudson Bay steamer Port St. James picked up the party at Cambridge Bay, Northwest Territory, after it had been located by Eskimos and guided across the ice of Dease Inlet from Melbourne Island. It was said in brief wireless reports to Churchill yesterday.

McAlpine and his fellow geologists had been searching for fabulously rich copper deposits in the Hudson Bay region.

Their two airplanes ran out of fuel while trying to reach a trading post at Victoria Inlet, Sept. 8, and they were forced down in open water just off Melbourne Island. Both machines are in excellent condition and need only to be re-fueled and equipped with skis to be able to return south.

Tom Mix Will Face Tax Trial Next, Feb

Los Angeles, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Tom Mix, cow-boy motion picture star, will be tried next February 13 on two charges of attempting to evade payment of $100,000 income tax.

Mix was wearing a dark brown riding suit, with tight-legged trousers, and high heeled shoes when he appeared in Federal Court here yesterday to plead not guilty to the indictment.

Mix's brother-in-law, Eugene J. Ford, his business manager, Sam D. Hill, and his tax advisor, J. Marjorie Berger, were charged with aiding the actor in evading tax payments. All pleaded not guilty with him. Ford and Miss Berger will be tried early next month.

Miss Berger also is charged with making false tax returns for Dorothy Mackaill, actress, in a trial going on now.

Army's Head Coach Wants Service Game

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Captain Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones, head coach of Army football, hopes that Army-Navy athletic relations may be resumed with the proviso that it be under the Army's own code of eligibility.

In a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System chain last night, Capt. Jones urged that the Army-Navy contests be resumed "with any Cadet or any Midshipman not deficient in his studies" eligible to participate.

The Army-Navy break of 1928 came when the Navy insisted that Army adopt the three-year eligibility rule. The Army was equally determined to preserve its own eligibility code which does not bar from competition Cadets who have played in college games before coming to West Point.

GAS FROM CORN STALKS RESULT OF EXPERIMENT

Chief of Ill. Water Survey Reports Of Procedure Needed

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—A concrete form of farm relief—the manufacture of methane gas from cornstalks and sewage—was described by Dr. A. M. Buswell, chief of the Illinois State Water Survey, in his annual report to Michael F. Walsh, state director of the Board of Registration and Education.

Results of the experiments with cornstalks and sewage were first announced by Dr. Buswell at a chemical meeting in Minneapolis early this fall. The research work was pursued by Dr. Buswell and C. S. Boruff, his assistant, in the State Water Survey's laboratories at the University of Illinois.

Dr. Buswell reported that a ton of cornstalks will yield from ten to twenty thousand cubic feet of gas. Thus, a ton of corn stalks would furnish gas for 400 people for one day, allowing 25 cubic feet per capita per day.

Using figures that show the corn yield for regions where 30 per cent of the land is planted in that crop, Dr. Buswell said that a circle with an eight-mile radius would produce enough cornstalks to supply a city of 80,000 inhabitants with gas.

"The process is not difficult to carry out," he said, "and the equipment which will consist largely of covered tanks, will not be apprehensive. From its dimensions it is apparent that such a tank could easily be installed at a nominal cost on any farm."

In the specific experiment that Dr. Buswell described to the Board of Natural Resources, one of the tanks which had been used for gas production from sewage sludge was taken for a demonstration experiment on the digestion of cornstalks. "On September 25," he said, "20 pounds (dry weight) of shredded cornstalks were soaked in water and fed to the tank instead of sewage sludge. Digestion proceeded without interruption with a yield of 100 cubic feet per day.

"There is good prospect that the present production can be doubled. In other words, a tank may be expected to produce at least 1/2 cubic foot of gas per day per cubic foot of tank volume, and 7 1/2 cubic feet of gas per pound of cornstalks.

"We estimate that if shredded cornstalks were used for bedding, the bedding and dung from half a dozen head of stock would supply enough gas for heating as well as cooking."

In addition to the report of experimentation with the manufacture of gas from cornstalks and sewage, Dr. Buswell gave an account of the State Water Survey's other activities.

Three Illinois River investigations have been conducted, he reported. The July survey covered the upper and middle Illinois River, mainly from Lockport to Havana. From August 8 to 10, the studies were made of the middle and lower river from Henry to Hardin and from October 1 to 3, the survey was carried out from Henry to Pekin.

"The effect of the pollution load from Chicago is plainly noted in the upstream stations," Dr. Buswell reported. "Here the biochemical oxygen demand and bacteriological data show high values while the dissolved oxygen content is noted to be very low."

"The data for the Peoria Narrows station show the river to be in good condition at this point, but immediately below Peoria and Pekin, it was found to be heavily polluted due to the wastes of these two cities."

These wastes along with the higher turbidities noted in the lower Illinois river system, are undoubtedly the contributing factors leading to the low dissolved oxygen and moderately high bacterial counts found in the lower reaches of the river."

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—The mid-October upturn in prices of all grades of cattle, attracted the second largest receipts in over a year and the market has lost some of its bloom. The Prairie Farmer market review said. "Some grades of steers and she-stock at Chicago have declined 50 cents," the review said. "Strictly fresh weights steers and baby heaves were scarce enough to keep prices rather firm, although the Chicago top is only $16, which is lower than at the corresponding time in either 1928, 1927, or 1925. The feeded movement to the country has been about normal for this season of the year."

With a smaller spring crop and with heavy marketings through the past few months it is logical to expect smaller receipts of hogs in the next four months. But, higher prices for corn may stimulate marketing and keep the supply up during this period. Hog prices have shown some rallying tendency recently but the main trend is still downward.

"After showing weakness during the last 10 days, lamb prices have stiffened again. Total receipts are gradually diminishing and lamb feeders are taking more than their share of the supply. Feeder prices are higher than for fat lambs in some markets."

Liquidation by worried speculative holders, as a result of the debacle in securities markets, failure of European demand to broaden and continuation of old offerings from the Argentine at low prices have kept the wheat market in troubled waters. The recent statement of the Federal Farm Board has encouraged the market somewhat."

The corn price curve has had a downward trend for six weeks. With storage space nearly filled at several important terminals, demand for new corn will be moderate until stocks decrease somewhat."

"With snow already falling over most of the Midwest, the demand for hay is expected to increase rapidly. Markets were higher last week."

"Sharp advances in egg prices such as occurred last week are not unusual at this season of the year yet. Production is still running behind a year ago and with consumption remaining unaffected by current high prices, some further increase in the shortage in reserve stock may occur."

"Receipts of dressed poultry are continuing to run sharply larger than last year at this time. Prices have declined. A large proportion of the receipts is going into storage."

"Again in production of butter, as evidenced by the larger receipts at the four markets compared with a year ago, plus the apprehension of dealers over the large storage stocks, brought a decline in the fresh butter market last week. Lower grades are almost back to summer prices."

TURKEY GROWER GETS SUN'S AID PRODUCING BIRD

Colorado Man Houses His Turkeys In Tents In Sun's Rays

SWINK, Colo.—(AP)—Some easterners say turkey, the southerner asks for mo' turkey and the westerner calls it tur-r-key.

But it's the same bird all over the country when it's turned out brown on Thanksgiving and Christmas.

With these festive occasions near, turkey growers of the United States are preparing to meet the demand. Glen Osborn, chief turkey grower of the Arkansas valley, has borrowed some hints from science to produce his share of holiday birds.

He grows his turkeys in tents and treats them to ultra-violet rays. Osborn exposes the eggs to full sunlight after the tenth day of incubation. He says this exposure in ultra-violet rays of the sun produces more hardy poults.

The tents give the poults a maximum of ventilation, sunshine and protection from the weather, and are less expensive than permanent wooden structures. The tent houses have board floors, and are mounted on skids so they can be moved.

On eight acres Osborn raised 2,200 turkeys this year. When October 1 came he placed the birds on alfalfa pasture, expecting to increase a ton turkey's weight from 19 to 28 pounds by Thanksgiving.

The Farm Week in Washington

BY FRANK I. WELLER

Farm Editor

(Associated Press Feature Service) Washington—(AP)—Its articles of incorporation adopted the $20,000,000 Farmers' National Grain Corporation is the first of the central cooperative marketing agencies set up by the Federal Farm Board to get underway in its own right.

The question of policy, as expressed in the articles of incorporation, has been a stumbling block in amalgamating the interest of the two factions in the grain trade—the farmer's elevator group and the wheat pools. With that out of the way, observers see no apparent obstacle in the road toward ultimate acquisition of bargaining power in the grain market.

The most nearly completed of the other two national commodity corporations is the $500,000 Federated Wool Growers' Cooperative Sales agency. Further consideration and perhaps adoption of its articles of incorporation is scheduled at a conference with the farm board in San Angelo, Tex., November 20. The federation seeks to coordinate the market activities of wool and mohair cooperatives.

Latest in the national organization movement is the $1,000,000 National Livestock Marketing association which, on October 24, in Chicago chose a committee of nine to draft the articles of incorporation and the bylaws under which it will attempt to bring powerful individual units into one channel of market operations.

Capitalization of the national agencies together with various facilities and supplemental commodity loans, has reduced the board's original appropriation of $150,000,000 to approximately $100,000,000. Under the Agricultural marketing act it was provided a $500,000,000 revolving fund to be appropriated by congress as needed.

Plans to finance cotton cooperatives through supplemental commodity loans pending the organization of a national cotton corporation are expected in some sources to call for the remainder of the first appropriation. Thus far no other national agencies have been projected.

Farmer's Invention

Chops, Blows, Loads

Calpatria, Cal.—(AP)—Hay-making has been put on a mechanical basis with a home-made device of Ira D. Aten, Jr.

It is a portable hay chopper, blower and loading machine which he uses on his 1,240 acres of land.

The hay is cut, raked into windrows, cured, elevated by a loader to the chopper and blown into large wagons traveling alongside. It is hauled to feed racks where the hay is again blown into weather resistant stacks.

Aten believes that by working a separator in conjunction with a dust collector, it will be possible to sack the leaf and blossom meal immediately.

Seek Hardy Strains Medium Red Clover

East Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—Michigan state college is cooperating with county agricultural agents in an effort to locate hardy strains of medium red clover. Farmers who have grown the same strains for 15 years or more are being listed.

Seed of these strains will be used in the development of more hardy red clovers for planting in northern states.

One farmer in Montmorency county, upper part of the lower peninsula, has had the same strain of clover on his farm for 23 years.

Farm to Catch Snow Drifts

On the flat farming land of Kansas, two problems confront farmers. Moisture conservation is one, and keeping the soil from drifting after being disked or listed is the other. The disked soil holds the moisture, but it is drifted by the wind which reaches high velocity during certain seasons. The problem has been solved by the Kansas State Agricultural Experimental farm at Hayes, as shown above. After the disking, stubble is left projecting above the ground. This catches loose drifting soil and flying snow in the winter. The soil drift is checked and the melting snow yields valuable water to be stored up for a dry period.

FORESTRY POLICY OF STATE TO BE CAREFULLY SET

A Large Tract In Union County Purchased For Purpose

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—As the laboratory in which future state forestry policies will be worked out, a large tract of land in Union County has been purchased by the Department of Conservation following an examination of the region by Director Ralph F. Bradford and Foresters Miller and Locke.

This tract which borders the Mississippi bottoms is the first acquisition of the State forest lands under the $500,000 appropriation provided by the 55th General Assembly. It consists of 3,279 acres and cost the state $11.22 an acre.

In announcing the purchase, Director Bradford declared that the tract is one of the most desirable areas in the state as a nucleus for larger areas of state forest in the future. He intends to develop it as an example of the department policy in future management of such lands.

The forest region is northwest of Jonesboro and almost straight west of Keokuk and may be reached by the Wolf Lake road. Proposed state hard roads will be within convenient distance of the forest preserve.

In general features the new state forest is an oak-hickory forest region with some tulip and beech in the ravines. Some of it has been cut over but the cutting will not decrease its game value which is one of the chief assets of the state forests, according to Director Bradford.

Old roads in the forest will be cleared and put in passable condition. This will give the Department of Conservation the skeleton of a fire protection system and make the preserve available for public use. A camping ground near one of the springs on the tract will also be provided by the state.

About 75 acres of the tract is to be used as a nursery for seed and transplant beds, under present plans of the department. Plantings will be made experimentally on eroded and brushy land by the forestry division. In keeping with the terms of the Springer Bill of 1925, the department may sell timber grown in the forest under the regulation of the director. Planting stock may also be sold at cost to land owners.

Following a complete survey of the forest, the department may designate portions of the tract as fish and game sanctuaries, according to Director Bradford.

The United States Naval Academy was originally located in the town of Newport, R. I.

NATIONAL SHOW WILL FEATURE YOUTH OF FAR

Plans Made To Rewa Work Of Boys And Girls Of Farms

The story of what thousands boys and girls of the farms of America are doing towards assuring future "farm relief" will be vividly enacted on the occasion of the 3rd International Live Stock Exposition to be held at the Chicago Stock Yard November 30 to December 1.

According to B. H. Heide, secretary-manager of the Show, it is in order to particularly recognize the best efforts of farm boys and girls throughout the land, who are engaged in worthwhile projects of farming and homemaking that the International expanded to include young people's department, in its an exposition of large scale.

Youth's Work Rewarded This is the National Boys' and Girls' Club Congress, which every year draws to it some 1200 select young men and women from the farm—a chosen lot from approximately 750,000 youths and girls of the country over who are turning their efforts to worthwhile projects in pursuance to the benefit of themselves, their home farms, and the communities.

Popular opinion places the most humanizing story of the exposition about "the boy and his calf." V. though the International is held the day has been seen when a lad 12 years could bring forth a steers calf, that had been bred and raised on his father's farm, and with his surplus the art of the professor feeder and the skill of the season showman.

Walter Biggar, the Scotch judo who placed the fat classes at the 1929 exposition, and who is now on his way to America to judge the 1930 Show, found a White-face yearling steer and his young master an undisciplined pair among the many professional contenders for the championship.

Youngsters in Spotlight Thus at the last International Youth crowned King. As a result the management finds that the intentions of the agricultural world are already focusing upon the coming Junior Contests of the show. Anticipation of a possible repetition of last year's miraculous occurrence which is still material for the sagacious among livestock showmen, participants and fans the count over.

OIL COMPANIES CONSIDER PLEA OF EMMERSON

Will Decide Next Week
On Dropping Suits
On Gasoline Tax

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 5—(UP)—Appeal of Governor Louis L. Emmerson to more than 100 oil companies to drop their fight on the 1929 state gasoline tax and thereby allow the state to go ahead with its 1930 hard roads program was under consideration by officials of those companies today. They will give their answer when their attorneys confer here next week.

Emmerson's appeal was voiced yesterday through State Senator Lowell B. Mason, Oak Park, when the oil companies' attorneys met here to select a test case from the 104 suits that have been filed against the gas law and speed it through the courts to an early final decision.

As a result of the appeal no steps were taken toward picking a test case. Instead the lawyers adjourned for one week so that they might confer with their clients as to whether the suits should be dropped.

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Illinois Marketers Petroleum Association announced their intention of dropping suits on condition that all are dropped.

According to G. A. Prini, secretary of the Association, the Standard Oil Company and the Association represent 98 per cent of the total money involved.

Dropping of the suits against the 1929 act, however, will have no effect on the fight against the invalid 1927 law, attorneys said.

The court fight along this line will be carried to the finish, which probably means that all but $2,000,000 of the taxes collected under this law will not be available for close to another year.

Emmerson's action was taken yesterday when it was shown that a court fight on the 1929 law would mean the tying up of funds for next year's road building program until 1931.

Of the $7,000,000 collected in six months operation of the 1927 gas law approximately $5,000,000 is still in litigation.

ROBBER-VANDAL RAN RAMPANT IN ARCHITECTSHOME

Stole Bonds, Smashed
Furniture, Slashed
Clothing

Lake Forest, Ill., Nov. 5—(UP)—A robber-vandal stole Edward H. Bennett's keepsakes he prized because his wife had given them before she died, smashed his favorite Chinese art objects, slashed his best clothing to tatters and stole $11,000 in bonds and gems, police were notified today.

Bennett, a nationally known architect, lives in Lake Forest, a millionaire's North Shore suburb. Depredations of the intruder, including theft and vandalism, was estimated by Bennett at $25,000. No motive for the act could be ascribed.

Six persons, a guest of Bennett and five servants, were in an upper wing sleeping when the robbery occurred Sunday night.

Mrs. Catherine Jones Bennett, daughter of David B. Jones, millionaire, gave him a pair of moonstone cuff links before she died and they were among the loot, Bennett told police. He valued them at much more than $4,000.

After smashing open a dresser drawer and taking the links, other jewelry and bonds, the vandal slashed two coats, six pairs of trousers, twelve dress shirts, and six suits of pajamas. Then, apparently, he went down to the library, took a poker from the fireplace and pounded to bits Chinese plates, bowls and vases worth more than $2,000.

Bennett, consulting architect of the Chicago Plan Commission, also is head of the Washington City Plan Commission. He said he did not suspect any servant, as all were trusted employees of many years.

CHICAGOAN, 75, SAYS KONJOLA IS WONDERFUL

Spend Hundreds of Dollars in Vain Search for Relief—
New Medicine Scores
Triumph.

MR. JOHN BOEDEKER.

"For years I suffered from indigestion, kidney and gall bladder troubles," said Mr. John Boedeker, 2451 West 67th Street, Chicago, Ill. "No matter how light my diet, the food remained like a lump in my stomach. I spit up bits of undigested food, pains assailed in either every meal. I was constipated and had dizzy spells and pains across my back. Every night I had to get up several times. Naturally I lost weight and strength. I heard about Konjola and decided to try it. What a surprise was in store for me. In two weeks my digestion was restored, my kidneys were functioning as they should and the constipation was relieved. I haven't a sign of an ache or pain and am eating and sleeping as I have done in years. I read that Konjola is the medicine with more than a million friends. If everyone knew what I do about Konjola it would have a billion friends."

Konjola is sold in Dixon, Ill., at FORD HOPKINS DRUG STORE.

Cook Co. Republican Leader Died Monday

Chicago, Nov. 5—(AP)—Lawrence F. King, 43, Republican leader and Trustee of the Chicago Sanitary District, died suddenly at his home last night after an illness of several days.

Friends of King saw in his death the indirect result of two bomb attacks against him and one against his secretary. Last December a powerful bomb exploded on the porch of his Chicago home, doing considerable damage and terrifying his five motherless children. Since that night, his friends said, he had not been the same and has been constantly worried about the welfare and safety of his children.

This condition was aggravated several months later when a bomb was thrown at the paint store owned by Sella Graham, King's private secretary, followed two weeks later by the explosion of a bomb at King's suburban home, untenanted at the time.

King became ill last week, but attended memorial services to Henry Berger, Sanitary District Trustee who had been crushed by a fall of rock at a loop building under construction.

Score Stolen Cars Recovered by State

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 5—(UP)—Recovery of twenty Chevrolet automobiles, alleged to have been stolen and distributed throughout central Illinois by a gang of thieves, was announced by Phil Harmon, Chief Auto Investigator of Secretary of State William J. Stratton's office here today. The cars, Harmon said, were stolen in Peoria, Bloomington and towns in those vicinities. Three men have been placed under arrest and several more are shortly expected to be taken into custody.

The investigation, which was directed by Deputy Agent, Whittier Fulton, Urbana, disclosed that reputable automobile dealers in various central Illinois towns were the dupes.

The cars, Harmon said, were disposed of by men who received them from the alleged thieves. These men, in turn, disposed of them to regular auto dealers in Bloomington, Urbana and other places.

Omaha Wrestler Lost to Champ Sonnenberg

Seattle, Nov. 5—(AP)—Charlie Hansen of Omaha was added to the long list of victims of Gus Sonnenberg's flying tackle today. The match was under the Australian wrestling system of eight 10-minute rounds.

A Great Gasolene FOR 2 REASONS

KOOLMOTOR GASOLENE

THE ORIGINAL HIGH-TEST,
ANTI-KNOCK GREEN GAS

KOOLMOTOR, the original green gas—is a great gasoline for two reasons.

Reason No. 1—it is high-test. This desirable feature gives you instant starting. When you step on your starter, Koolumotor gasoline springs to duty immediately—no waiting—your motor has started. Then, when you step on your accelerator, you move—fast—no faltering or sputtering. Koolumotor is a real high-test gas.

Reason No. 2—Koolumotor gasoline is anti-knock. You go up hills in high with never a trace of a knock. When you slow down on the straight away or around corners, Koolumotor eliminates unnecessary gear shifting. Koolumotor is a real anti-knock gas.

Drive to the nearest Cities Service station or dealer to-day for a tank full. You, too, will call it a great gasoline!

Greatest Woman Scientist Honored

Frail of body through years of contact with the powerful substance radium, of which she is co-discoverer, Mme. Marie Curie, famous woman scientist, was exhausted by ceremonies in her honor at St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y. ## At Funeral of Mrs. Goodhue Simplicity marked the funeral of Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the former President, at Northampton, Mass. Pictured above is the scene as the casket bearing the body of Mrs. Goodhue was removed from the Edwards Congregational Church at the end of the services. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and their son John, are seen standing in the background in the church entrance. Mrs. Goodhue's lingering illness twice called Mrs. Coolidge from the White House to Northampton during President Coolidge's incumbency.

Fatal Fire Laid to Racketeers

Building racketeers were blamed for this spectacular blaze, pictured here at its height, which destroyed an apartment building under construction in New York. One workman, trapped by the flames, was burned to death on an upper story of the structure. The building was owned by the father of one of the grand jurors who are investigating a series of similar fires, all of mysterious origin, which have razed other new apartment houses in Manhattan in recent months.

Anne Austin, author of — The Black Pigeon, "Rival Wives," etc.

"A favor," Cora echoed, her eyes dilating. "What do you mean?" "I mean," Strawn said, "that Sevier asked you to help him rob Mrs. Emma Hogarth."

THE Cora Barker whom Bonnie Dundee had met at dinner that evening had been a woman possessed of a queer sort of beauty, exotic and largely artificial though that beauty was. A woman gallantly holding age at bay, convincing herself and almost convincing her world that she was a charming girl of 25 or 28, instead of a defeated, frustrated, heart-hungry woman of near 40. Then it was only her thin, dry-skinned hands which had betrayed her age, if one were so foolish as to look at them rather than into her great, shining black eyes.

But the face of the woman who hesitated at the door of the room where murder had been committed was a ravaged thing. The eyes were like burned holes in a yellow blanket. Her right hand was pressed hard against her heart; the left, freshly bandaged, hung at her side.

"You're Miss Barker?" Strawn asked briskly, when he had missed Patrolman Boyle and had waved the woman to a chair close to the dead woman's desk, at which he himself was seated.

"Cora Barker," she answered. "You occupy the room next to this?"

"Yes, sir, the east corner room." "You know, of course, that Mrs. Hogarth was murdered tonight?" Strawn was brutally direct.

"A man—a detective, I suppose he was—knocked at my door and told me so," Cora answered unsteadily.

"And that was the first you knew of it?"

"Why—of course!" she gasped. "Where were you this evening, Miss Barker, between 11 and 12:15?"

"I was at the Little Queen Theater from 11 till 12, and then—"

"The movie closes at 11, doesn't it?" Strawn interrupted.

"The last show is over at 11—yes," Cora answered. "I play the piano there, and I had to stay after the show to go over the score of the music for Sunday's picture with the new violinist, Mr. Frankel. We finished at half-past 11, and then I waited in the lobby or on the sidewalk in front of the theater until 12."

"Why?"

"I was waiting for Mr. Magnus—Mr. Herbert S. Magnus, one of the boarders here," Cora replied, her voice quivering. "He had promised to call for me after theater-closing to take me out to supper and walk home with me."

"And when did he come—12 o'clock?" Strawn prodded.

"I was waiting for Mr. Magnus—Mr. Herbert S. Magnus, one of the boarders here," Cora replied, her voice quivering. "He had promised to call for me after theater-closing to take me out to supper and walk home with me."

"Rather late for a job like that, wasn't it? Tomorrow, or rather, today being Sunday?" Strawn suggested, his eyes narrowing upon her.

"I see," Strawn drawled. "I take it, then, that you are no longer engaged to Emil Sevier?"

"Engaged to Emil Sevier?" Cora echoed. "I was never engaged to Emil Sevier! And we are no longer even friends—"

"But it was you who suggested that he come here to board, wasn't it, Miss Barker?"

"I worked with him at the Little Queen Theater. He was violinist and I was pianist. He asked me if I could recommend this as a boarding place, and I did, of course. We were together a good deal, because of our work and because we both love music, but—"

"You saw Sevier tonight?" Strawn cut in sharply.

DUNDEE saw that Cora was about to lie, then changed her mind. She hung up her head defiantly. "He stopped at my plane to tell me goodbye. He said he was going to Chicago on the 1 o'clock train, to look for a new job."

"Isn't it true, Miss Barker, that Sevier asked you to do him a little favor before he left?" Strawn's voice was lazily pleasant, almost coaxing.

"A favor?" Cora echoed, her eyes dilating. "What do you mean?" "I mean," Strawn said very slowly and distinctly, "that Sevier asked you to help him rob Mrs. Emma Hogarth."

The thin shoulders shrugged and then sagged wearily. "He—didn't come," she admitted. "He had promised to be there about half-past 11, and I waited till 12. I—"

"I might have waited longer, but the theater manager, Mr. Hartman, who had been in his office till then, came out and made some joke about—"

"about my being 'stood up' and I—I came on home. Mr. Hartman and I walked about a block together, to where his car was parked on Fourth and Grand. He offered to drive me home, but since it was only a few blocks I decided to walk."

"What time was it when you got home?" Strawn asked.

Still More Millions

TREAT COLDS DIRECT

Each year more and more people give up the old, indirect way of treating colds by "dosing" and turn to Vicks VapoRub.

Just rubbed on, Vicks medicated vapors are inhaled direct to the air-passages, and, at the same time, it acts direct through the skin like a plaster.

This better way of treating colds originated with Vicks a generation ago.

Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing," and there are "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."
